WASHINGTON, DC, USA, April 11, 2024 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Dr. Krishnan Suthanthiran has been an advocate for the concept of Total Health and Proactive Healthcare System for the past 20 years. He aims to reduce the death and suffering from cancer, cardiac diseases, diabetes, infectious diseases, and other ailments by as much as 50% through his non-profit organization, Best Cure Foundation (BCF).

Best Cure Total Health System is defined as Prevention, Early Detection and Effective Treatment for Total Cure. Best Cure Proactive Healthcare System is defined as Full Transparency on Clinical Outcome, Benefits and Cost.

Lancet Magazine published an article, "The promise of a good death" about their analysis of clinical data from 200 countries, over 10 years and concluded that practicing the Best Cure Total Health System approach can save as many as 50% of those dying today.[1]

To practice Best Cure Total Health and Proactive Health Systems, Surgery contributes significantly to promotion, implementation, and execution. Although there are separate associations for Surgery and Surgical Oncology, there is no global organization that combines both. The International Society for Surgery & Surgical Oncology (ISSSO) aims to bring Surgery and Surgical Oncology Specialists together under one umbrella to promote interdisciplinary exchange of practices and innovations, thus helping to improve clinical outcomes at a lower cost.
